

Personal Statement for Postgraduate Law

There is nothing better than using your enthusiasm for something that pervades every part of our lives, to help individuals and add to life experiences. Law and cooperate world have been my areas of interest from a young age. These interests developed and impacted my routine during my A-levels, when I was introduced to Business along with Philosophy and Ethics. The concepts of philosophy made me think about every aspect of life in great detail. The concept of ethics made me aware of human rights and all the wrongs that go around unnoticed.

Carrying these concepts with me I followed the path to International Business. During the educational and professional years, I acquired skills relating to this ever-growing field of business. I have worked in areas relating to accounting & finance, marketing, advertising and customer service. These experiences have urged me to pursue a law degree as I need to train myself to see things from different perspectives all the while thinking critically. It is important to address people confidently, before judging or progressing without evidence, and engage in meaningful, productive conversations and arguments. Furthermore, I believe that my gained knowledge and understanding of the business sphere can be really useful in catalyzing change in this new direction that I want to pursue.

I strongly believe and I am optimistic that this will be the best progression in my career. I have learned that I am equipped with good set of skills, the right passion and natural abilities that would see me excel in law. I take pleasure in reading and understand its importance is vital in learning law. In my knowledge, I am suitable for this career as I observe deeply the subtleties and invest wholeheartedly in understanding work that bring about real-life community issues that the
